Lloyd George Naively Confesses Instruction of Government Professions.

Brooklyn Standard Presents Treinnd's Case as It Is Today.

FRENCH A TRAITOR AND FAILURE

Editorially the Brooklyn Standard Union tells its readers that again ond again it has been asserted a chief object of the world war was to secure the right of self-government and self-determination for small nations. President Wilson has together were mere commodities. Engiand has concurred in all these adtruistic deciarations. Yet Lioyd George naively confesses the insincerity of such professions, so far as England is concerned, in a speech he made before the House of Commons recently. Speaking of increasing the difficulties not increasing the British Government. his Government, he said "it was dealing with the problem of governing a country without having the full assent of its people." That's the case in a nutshell

Engiand never had any right in ireland except might. Morally Ire-iand is no more bound to England tian Beigium is to Germany. Both approved chapiain candidates at than Beigium is to Gerniany. Both of these great powers are in possession of the smaller countries they rule by force of arms, which amounts to robbery. The only difference is the English robbery took place more than seven hundred years ago, and in that time a minority of the population, composed, however, of the wealthy and in some senses the most influential some senses the most influential because the sense of the than Beigium is to Germany. MURDER BY AN INSANE OFFICER

I am only at the beginning of the long story, and I have no time to tell the whole at the moment. Take for instance the treatment of the Sixteenth division—the division for the creation of which Redmond and Devlin had the main responsibility; 98 per cent, of the rank and file were Nationalist and Catholic. Ap-plication after application was made or the appointment of Nationalists and Catholics as officers; they were refused, and yet again refused, until it finally worked out that in a di-vision 98 per cent. Nationalist and Catholic 85 per cent, of the officers were Protestant and Unionist.

Take another instance: When the frish regiments went into battle and distinguished themselves by their conspicuous bravery their names were deliberately omitted from the bulletins by the Orange gang in the War Office that ran the army. Then came the climax to this long chapter of criminal biunders. Sir Edward Carson, the leader of the Ilster rehellion, was admitted to he Cabinet. By unconscious humor he rebcilious leader, as Attorney General for England, was created the chief custodian of law.

Even a worse outrage was atempted in Ireland. If there were one man in Ireiand who could be described as an even narrower and nore virulent Orangeman than Carson it was James Campbeil. It was proposed to get rid of the excellent Lord Chancellor, then in office, Sir Ignatius O'Brien, a Catholic and a Nationalist, and to out Campbeil in his place. SUCCESS IN MANAGING INDIANS

Those who have come in contact with the Spanish people in Mexico and in our own country have often found occasion to note a rare refinement of character and manner which is readlly traced to the influence of the Catholic religion. Non-Catholics, as for instance the historlan Luminis, have learned to love the Spaniards In the Americas because of the virtues acquired past week in the public library reading all literature pertaining to the raising of children. A little baby girl arrived at his home on West through the benign influence of the church, and more than one student of history and ethnology has praised the truly early Christian hospitality of these people and their wonderful tact and success in managing the Indians and in educating the latter to lives of peace and Industry.

A faseinating description both of the happy life and charming manners of Spaniards in California in the sixties and seventies of the last century, before the coming of the railroads, and also of the skill and success with which they cared for their Indian charges, is offered infifty years ago by a noted traveler, Charles Nordhoff. His appointment to succeed Cardinal Satolli was not looked for by American ecclesiastics, as lt was not then the custom for members of monastic orders to attain high preferment in the church. In order to give him the necessary rank to go with his appointment, Pope Leo created him an Archbishop "in partibus infidelium," or a Bishop not residing at his see. While still resident in the United States in 1901 he was created Cardinal.

THE PRO AND CON.

There are two arguments against appeal to many persons. One is that legislation of this kind fails unless upheld by local public opinion. It is possible that a State which was made dry against its will might not become very dry. The other argument is that under ur form of government matters of this kind have been left to the States; that the invasion of State Knights of Columbus was opened in authority in this case would be a the complete them, though the United Supreme Court thought them of sufficient importance to warrant it In setting aside an act of Congress as unconstitutional in the child labor law case.
